

The World in the Right Direction

written by Anne Curran | June 26, 2019

Telling the personal story of health care...by and for everyone—patients, health professionals and students of narrative medicine. Telling the personal story of health care...by and for everyone—patients, health professionals and students of narrative medicine. Telling the personal story of health care...by and for everyone—patients, health professionals and students of narrative medicine. Telling the personal story of health care...by and for everyone—patients, health professionals and students of narrative medicine. Telling the personal story of health care...by and for everyone—patients, health professionals and students of narrative medicine. Telling the personal story of health care...by and for everyone—patients, health professionals and students of narrative medicine.